“Is ASEAN Really Sustainable in a Changing Global Future?”
28th July – 4th August 2019
Bangkok, Thailand

It has become clear, and to say, that we live in exceptionally unstable times. The world, we are told, has never been more unpredictable, many would say, unsustainable. Whether this concerns politics and security, global economy, environment and resources, digital disruption, society and culture, all being influx, with such a rapid global changing landscape that invites all of us to take a real pause and, perhaps, to provide a proper response.

All that said, fundamental changes are certainly under way, and for our ASEAN, our Community building, all these have real meaning of transformation for our own sustainability and development, and that of our future generation, wherever they live. This may be the time why we need to talk so much more about our global future of regional integration and unequal development that comes along, in so many dimensions, all overlapped, within our 3 pillars of the ASEAN Community, whether and how, by integrating strategies among members, then connecting to strategic partners and beyond, can help to solve real causes of problems with which we are all faced.

For 2019 to be the round of Thailand’s ASEAN Chair, the regional and global environment requires the grouping to be more vigilant and proactive in ways that would promote better dialogue and cooperation among member countries and key dialogue partners. As the Chair of ASEAN, it is crucial for Thailand to play this important role, “Advancing Partnerships for Sustainability”, which is a worthwhile theme to talk so much about sustainability, in all related dimensions, of our ASEAN and beyond, under “exceptional uncertainty” of our global future.

Recognizing the importance of the youths as the future of ASEAN community, as well as acting as a platform for the dialogue between the ASEAN Member States, the ASEAN Studies Center of Chulalongkorn University would like to invite ASEAN students, who are the future leaders of the ASEAN to gather at the ASEAN Youth Exchange Program 2019 under theme: “Is ASEAN Really Sustainable in a Changing Global Future?” to enhance their understanding on the role of ASEAN in advancing partnership sustainability under the changing world and forge strong friendship among them. The program, which include lectures, discussions, workshop and site visits in Thailand, will be held between 28th July – 4th August 2019.
